Course Overview

Lumber Grading Course Outline and Objective

AFPA's Lumber Grading course is designed for people who want to learn how to grade lumber under the National Lumber Grades Authority (NLGA) standards. A Lumber Grader inspects and decides or grades lumber to identify defects, ensure conformance to company specifications and classify products according to industry standards. They determine what grade a piece of lumber fits within.

Lumber graders work in planer mills, sawmills and remanufacturing facilities. Lumber graders are part of the team that produces lumber products. Along with the specific skill of lumber grading, lumber graders pay attention to safety, efficiency and quality.

The specific structure of this course is designed to make it easy for the student to learn.

Graders whose training certificates are expiring by December 31, 2018 must renew their training prior to the expiry date in order to continue grading.

To access the list of grader expiry dates, contact Norm Dupuis (email: n.dupuis@albertaforestproducts.ca or by phone: 780.392.0758)

Students should bring an imperial measuring tape to class - not less than 8 feet in length – it should be able to measure 1/16 of an inch measurements.

Students are encouraged to bring a calculator capable of calculating fractions to class or download a free app called fractionplus.

Additional training materials, outside of those provided in class, can be viewed on the AFPA web site for anyone interested in pre-grade school studying.

Additional training session may be offered throughout the year – notifications will be sent.

Organizations wanting additional in-house training sessions should contact AFPA's Norm Dupuis for details.
